OVERVIEW

Roque Bluffs State Park provides visitors with a great diversity of coastal landscapes to enjoy in 274 acres on Schoppee Point (south of Machias). A beautiful, half-mile crescent of sand and pebbles along Englishman Bay is backed by the shallow waters of 60-acre Simpson Pond—allowing for bracing saltwater swims and much warmer fresh water soaks. Between the beach and the pond are several picnic areas and a children’s play area adjoining the parking area. A 6-mile trail network just inland from the shore leads through old orchards, fields and woods, with paths that follow the rocky shores of Great Cove and Pond Cove.

The diverse habitats at Roque Bluffs State Park support abundant wildlife, and bird watchers enjoy interesting sightings at all seasons. Bald eagles frequent the area year-round and many migrant species stopover during spring and fall. Birders occasionally spot less common waterfowl, such as Barrow’s Goldeneye, Redhead and Gadwall ducks, and Hooded Mergansers. During summer months, pipers, plovers and interesting species of gull (like ring-billed) frequent the beach.

Both Englishman Bay and Simpson Pond can be explored by canoe or kayak (with rental kayaks available for use on Simpson Pond). The pond is stocked so anglers can fish for brook trout in the spring and brown trout through much of the summer. Bait fishermen use the pond in fall and winter.

PROPERTY HISTORY

The sand/pebble beach at Roque Bluffs State Park is an unusual geologic feature along the Downeast coast, much of which is marked by bold cliffs and cobble shores. It resulted from an accumulation of sediment that eroded from a prominent glacial moraine lying to the east. There is a bedrock outcrop at the eastern end of the beach where visitors can see glacial striations (deep grooves in the bedrock left by the glacier’s movement toward the southeast). The evidence here of glacial history has made the Park stop #29 on Maine’s Ice Age Trail (to learn more, visit <http://iceagetrail.umaine.edu/>).

This unusual beach has long been popular with area residents and visitors. The Maine State Park Commission used proceeds from a public bond to acquire and protect the land in 1969.

Offshore, visitors can see Libby Lighthouse (formerly known as Machias Lighthouse because it marks the entrance to Machias Bay). This historic structure, built in 1817, is still an active beacon.

VISITOR RULES

- Carry out all trash.
- Dogs are not permitted on the ocean beach. Elsewhere, keep pets on leash (less than 4 feet) at all times. Do not leave pets unattended and clean up after them (carrying out bags with waste).
- Park rules prohibit use of intoxicating beverages.
- Camping is not permitted.
- Do not feed, touch or disturb wildlife.
- Do not leave valuables unattended in your vehicle

Consider lending a hand. Contact the Park if you would like to help with land or trail stewardship.

TRAILS

The main trailhead parking lot is a quarter-mile east of the beach parking lots (up the hill toward Roque Bluffs village). The trail network can also be accessed from the beach parking area via Starr Trail. Three main hiking trails (Houghton’s Hill Trail, Mihill Trail and Pond Cove Trail) and several smaller connector trails (Blueberry Camp Trail and Larry’s Loop) allow visitors to create a variety of hikes meandering through fields and woodlands bordering Pond and Great coves. Trails are color coded and clearly marked.

- Houghton’s Hill Trail (0.8 mile, red blazes) provides a woods walk from the main trailhead to Pond Cove. A picnic table located halfway along the trail offers a place to rest or snack.
- Mihill Trail (1 mile, yellow blazes) leaves Houghton’s Hill trail a little over a mile from the main parking area providing a longer route to Pond Cove. This trail ascends a small hill and skirts the shore of Great Cove. Look for two turnoffs providing shortcuts back to Houghton’s Hill (these create Larry’s Loop).
- Pond Cove Trail (0.8 mile, green blazes) leads through meadows and woods over largely flat terrain and offers scenic vistas over Pond Cove.
- Blueberry Camp Trail (0.2 mile, blue blazes) provides a alternative route to the Houghton’s Hill Trail and climbs a small hill.
- Starr Trail (0.3 mile) skirts a wetland and provides a connection from the beach area to the trail network.

SPECIAL CONSIDERATIONS

Please enjoy Roque Bluffs State Park during daylight hours: the main area is gated at night.

Bring potable water with you as there is none on site. Visitors are welcome to swim in Englishman’s Bay and Simpson Pond but no lifeguard protection is offered. Those who fish off the beach on Englishman’s Bay should be careful of nearby swimmers. For more on saltwater angling, consult the Maine Saltwater Angler’s Guide (available online at www.maine.gov/dmr/recreational/anglerguide/index.htm).

Kayakers can launch their boats from the beach on Englishman’s Bay, but the State does not own any nearby islands so public access is not guaranteed. Only experienced kayakers should paddle the open waters of Englishman’s Bay, given the potential for fog and wind.

WHEN TO VISIT

Please enjoy Roque Bluffs State Park during daytime hours only: there is no camping allowed. The park is open from May 15 to October 15. While parking areas are gated the remainder of the year, visitors may enjoy the trails and beach at any season.

NEARBY DESTINATIONS

Roque Bluffs State Park lies within the Downeast-Acadia Region (www.downeastacadia.com) that encompasses Hancock and Washington Counties and represents the easternmost corner of the United States. Nearby destinations include:

- Rocky Lake Public Lands offers 10,000 acres of lands well suited to canoeing, fishing and backcountry camping.
- Fort O’Brien State Historic Site guarded the Machias River in the American Revolution, War of 1812 and Civil War.
- Cobscook Bay State Park offers waterfront campsites and a good base for exploring easternmost Maine.
- Cutler Coast Public Lands offer 10 miles of trails with 4.5 miles of frontage along the dramatic “bold coast.”
- Quoddy Head State Park has a photogenic lighthouse and scenic waterfront trails along the easternmost point of land in the United States.

For additional hiking opportunities, see the Cobscook Trails guide available at area stores or from Downeast Coastal Conservancy (207-255-4500 or www.downeastcoastalconservancy.org).
